

Scuba Diving in Puget Sound is a wonderful experience.

Modern wet suits, and dry suits keep us warm, diving all year round. You will be amazed at the incredible things you will see underwater here and around the world. It's fun and easy, and with home study - you learn faster.

HOW TO CHOOSE A SCUBA CLASS

Naturally, the price of the class is important to you, but here are some other questions, which may be more important:

"How big are your classes? Will I receive adequate attention?"

At Bubbles Below, we do not allow more than 10 students in a class, and usually have 6 - 8 students. Smaller classes mean that you will not have to spend lots of time waiting for other students, and you can receive more personalized training.

"How many staff will be there to help me learn, and look after my safety?"

For our open water dives in Puget Sound, we usually have 2 or 3 Instructors and 3 or 4 certified dive staff assisting.

"Are the students provided with Dive Computers?"

All Bubbles Below students are provided with this important instrument, which automatically tracks your dive depth and time, and calculates how long the air in your tank will last, for your safety.

"Are Weight Belts provided, or Weight Integrated BC's?"

You can use weight belts if you want bruised hips, or you can carry the weights in your Buoyancy Compensator (BC) like a comfortable backpack as we do at Bubbles Below. All of our weight systems use soft comfortable weight pouches, not the hard lead style.

"Can I certify in a Dry Suit?"

Almost all active divers in the Puget Sound wear dry suits and not wet suits. Bubbles Below students have the option of using a Dry Suit.

"Can I get Certified even faster?"

Private and Semi-Private classes are available, and can be scheduled to meet your needs. There is an extra charge, but our Private Class students always say it is worth the extra cost.

Before you choose a dive center for your first scuba experience, look beyond the price of the class. You deserve the best scuba equipment and training for your safety and enjoyment. Come to Woodinville and meet us, see our facility, see the equipment we provide, ask the questions and talk with our staff and students. We do things differently - you deserve the best - at Bubbles Below!
